

MEDIA & POLITICS & ADVOCACY

RED DEFINED

Inside Washington 2018 Academic Seminar | January 2-14, 2018

JOIN A SELECT GROUP OF FACULTY IN THE NATION'S CAPITAL THIS JANUARY FOR THE WASHINGTON CENTER'S INSIDE WASHINGTON 2018 ACADEMIC SEMINAR

.....

In today's divided and contentious
political climate,
how can we challenge our students to become leaders who can effect positive change?

.....

Did the Trump administration drain the swamp, or is it still business as usual in Washington, D.C.? Has the president's use of Twitter fundamentally changed the nature of media coverage in the U.S.? What's in store for the 2018 midterm elections, and how are rallies and protests shaping our political and social landscape?

You and your students will explore a variety of current issues while gaining direct access to the perspectives of media experts, political players and national influencers. As a faculty leader, you'll have an opportunity to facilitate discussion and help students connect their seminar experience to concepts they've learned back on campus.

As a faculty leader, you will:

- Earn a stipend of up to $3,000 and receive complimentary housing accommodations
- Network and develop relationships with speakers
- Work collaboratively with and learn from other leading faculty from across the U.S.
- Access information that you can incorporate into your on-campus instruction
- Gain increased marketability and enhance your skills in delivering experiential education

Want to know more?

Please contact Sara Biggs, Senior Director, College and University Relations, at sara.biggs@twc.edu to schedule a one-on-one conversation.

If you are ready to make a reservation for you and your students, please visit www.twc.edu/IW18-reservation